DAILY LETTER

From

SANTA CLAUS

North Pole,
 December 18, 1920.

Mr. Ed Young,
 Hammond, Ind.

Hello, Ed, Old Timer:

I'll bet when you wrote me asking for your Christmas presents and recommending to me where I could make some good selections, and also asked for a reply to your letter, you thought simply because you had grown to be quite a big boy that I would forget you, but you see this letter is evidence in itself that I still remember my old friends.

Say, Ed, you think or at least some folks do, that you're quite a fiddler, well be that as it may, they tell me you're gonna use your orchestra for an orphan children's benefit dance, proceeds to go to these little tots. That's indeed a noble act and I'll try to reward you and the rest of your music makers when I'm in Hammond on Christmas Eve.

At that, I've a lot of respect for your musical opinion, so I'm going to ask your candid opinion of my selection of Melo Harps, Edison and Victrola Talking Machines from Straube's as Christmas gifts for Hammond folks. Pretty good, eh?

'Nother thing, Ed: you're married now, so you don't need to blush or think anything about this, but if any of the men that you know are in doubt as to where to go to buy their wives, children's or sweethearts any wearing apparel—you know what I mean, classy stuff—send them to the Weserveu Ladies Shop at 650 So. Hohman street.

Well, I've got to hunt up my seal skin driving gloves and be ready for Christmas Eve. So long.

SANTA CLAUS.

P. S.—Ed, you're quite a story teller, aren't you? I think I'll leave you a story book so you can spring them on your friends.

Everything of, excelling value is offered in the Jackson Six. Trimness that suggests litheness in power; strength, flexibility and comfort is the cloak of the noteworthy features of mechanical progress embodied behind the striking radiator and in its chassis design. There are also many finer touches in appearance and construction heretofore found only in the highest priced cars. For its weight, 3000 pounds, its power is exceptional, giving to the Jackson a wonderful get-away ability, snap and stamina.

When You Play the Melo-Harp

You'll find something new and delightful in music. The Melo-Harp combines the soft, sweet strains of the harp and the full, mellow tones of the perfect piano.

The Melo-Harp is found only in Straube-made Player-Pianos. It has made the Straube Player one of the most popular musical instruments in this community.

We want you to try the Melo-Harp—to play your favorite selections in your own way. Come in and enjoy a half hour or so of truly delightful melody.

IF YOU ARE NOT TOO PARTICULAR

about a slightly used Piano, we have a few Straube Melo Harps that are absolutely as good as new. In fact, if you can tell them from new ones we will make you a present of one.

These are instruments returned from a dealer who was forced to liquidate. They have never been used, but we will allow a mighty tempting discount on them, and they will carry identically the same guarantee as our newest Melo Harp Players.

Call this evening, if convenient, and inspect them.
